Greetings, Merry Month of May!
With Your Smiling Winsome Way

*Down on the beach when the tide is out
Beautiful things lie all about—
Rubies and diamonds and shells and pearls,
Starfish, oysters and mermaids' curls;
Slabs of black marble cut in the sand,
Veined and smooth and polished by hand;
And whipped-up foam that I think must be
What mermen use for cream in tea.*

NOTICE

It you would like to trade your extra car for real Oriental rugs, come to see me at Rosser-Casheen's Furniture company. Mr. Maledon.

Coral and flame are two much favored colors for evening wear, at eastern resorts.

Something Fashions for the vacation season will find pajamas the most comfortable and practical sleeping garment. And my Fashion Journal says: "Pajamas are worn for lounging as well as sleeping purposes."

Small black lace hats are seen now with afternoon frocks.

There is nothing too wonderful for mother, and next Sunday we will enjoy the rest of her life. Then my readers, visit Heilborn's Jewelry store, at Second and Main, where you'll be sure to see the very gift you have in mind. I was particularly interested in the charming bracelets, hair-pins and wrist watches that had just arrived. Of course they will show you a world of other appropriate suggestions, and you will very happy to find the "right gift" from this popular and reliable jewelry store.

Gloaming around at smart gatherings, Eve noticed that perhawing blue, white and red stood out as pre-

"Nobodys" smile, but in moth and bone, can cheer us then; and thus nobodys heart but mothers heart keeps always warm and true." A sentiment I noticed on a beautiful card for mother at Field's Stationery company, 208 South Main. Their cards and stationery are distinctive in style and sentiments to please the individual. Select the one you must mail early in the week.

White skirts are longer than they have gone none of their petal-like qualities.

Intriguing, graceful and becoming are the smart chapeaux now showing at the Henley Hat Shoppe, 623 South Boston. Every one of these lovely hand-made models specially priced for this week. Be sure to get them.

Bright embroidered sleeves are a popular method of adding color to the dark gown.
